

Govt. should provide only defense capability & urban infrastructure only and other services (education, health, social security) to be provided by private groups or individuals in community

Of late due to clubbing of public and private organisations there was much hue and cry. Due to various authorities task gets delegated among groups and often nobody takes responsibility. It is certainly true that government's duty is to provide defence capability and urban infrastructure and rest needs to be given to private.

Comment: ?????

Comment: and cry, due

Comment: tasks getting

Comment: Is it "certainly true"?

Comment: and the rest needs to be given to private groups or individuals.

Comment: for

Comment: a

Comment: ,

Comment: dividing the tasks maybe

Comment: Believed by who?

Comment: governments

Comment: Which governments? Be careful, not all governments main priority remains defence!

Comment: a

Comment: distribution, by this I mean that there are...

Comment: and the

Comment: a

Comment: the

Comment: checks

Comment: the

Comment: contracts

Comment: continue

Comment: must

Comment: systems they often blame

Comment: checks and controls.

Even though it is a good solution to cater ()the needs of ()huge population and poor economy, nevertheless, it has its own pros and cons. Firstly starting from the pros, in a large country() government finds it difficult to operate and provide all services, so divided task is a good solution. It is believed that often health and education suffers the most as government main priority remains defence. It is also true that education and health are pillars of strength for any nation so they need ()more focused approach.

However, it will be prudent to say that privatization of health, education and social security may promote unequal distribution. In addition, there are chances that rich and powerful may get good treatment()rest may be neglected.

Perhaps, privatisation of ()few areas can be a better solution if ()government maintains annual check and control over ()private organisation. Furthermore, one year contract may be given to provide such services. So in order to use a contract they may work honestly.

It may be the case but it may give rise to increased fees. Also it is found in public-private collaboration system often blames each other. It may lead to chaos and problems of accountability in cases of negligence and malpractice.

To conclude, it can be said that delegating some services to private organisations may be a good solution to unburden the shoulders of government but it needs proper check and control.

Well done, your essay is easy to read and well structured but you must improve your understanding of prepositions.