Heroes in Philippine history played an important role the reason why we got our independence. A different era came, Filipinos were lead by the dictatorship of former President Ferdinand Marcos. One historical event was happened sometime on February 2006. It was a People Power Revolution-It was all about the unity among Filipinos. They were able to fought for their rights. If I could go back to one moment in history, I would want to go back during the People Power Revolution.

First, I would like to find out what makes the people unite. For example, I wanted to know how they set up a secret meeting againsts the government. I heard lots of people, especially journalists were killed if they would talk or write negative things about the government. Although natioana broadcasting was prohibited by the government, my family was aware of the revolution. There were some brave journalists who were able to cover up the situation in the city

Second, I would like to experience how to aim for a peaceful and bloodless revolution. For instance, I was only 10 years old at that time. Also I live in the province which is miles away from Manila. It was not safe and easy for me to travel and go to the city to participate on People Power.

And finally, I would like to know the feeling of regaining democracy. I remember, my older sister was able to have her picture taken on one of the 4x4 military facilities. She and my aunt was able to visit the soldiers and gave them some food. She participated on the victory of Filipino to let dictator get out of the highest position in the country.
